

Limited Power of Attorney (POA) Revocation

Cunningham Commodities, LLC's ("Cunningham") records reflect that the account listed below has granted Limited Power of Attorney ("POA") to an entity or individual named below. In order for Cunningham to remove the POA from the account, it is necessary that a completed and executed revocation be obtained. Once the POA is revoked, the entity or person that had the authority to place trades in the customer's account is no longer permitted to place trades on behalf of the customer, pursuant to the POA.

Account and Existing Trader:

Account Number _____

Account Name _____

The undersigned requests the POA previously granted to:

_____ be revoked as of the date indicated below.

In revoking the POA for the above name entity or individual, the customer understands and agrees to the following. :

- I have notified the individual or entity named above that the POA previously granted has been revoked. I have instructed the individual or entity named above on how to handle liquidation of any open positions remaining in the Account.
- Upon receipt of this Form, Cunningham will, as soon as practicable, remove the POA from the Account as I have directed.
- If there are management and/or incentive fees due to the entity or individual named above, I agree to maintain sufficient funds in the account to allow Cunningham to deduct and remit such fees.
